

Diploma in IFRS

International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS) is required for financial reporting in over 90% of the world's leading economies, so few companies can afford to ignore the need for their staff to understand IFRS and its implications for their financial reporting and the whole business.

Who is the DipIFR for?

This program is intended for professionals working in accounting, audit and finance who want to take a qualification exam in International Financial Reporting and broaden their knowledge of the theoretical and practical aspects of IFRS.

Eligibility:

- Three years' work experience in the field of accounting or finance or
- A relevant degree plus two years' work experience or
- ACCA affiliate status or
- ACCA Certificate in International Financial Reporting (CertIFR) plus two years' work experience

In the long run, participants of our preparatory course achieve high pass rates. The average pass rate of our students, who gained the qualification with the help of this programme, is

82%
