

Fraud Prevention Survey in the Czech Republic 2019

Current surveys regarding fraud in the Czech Republic show that:

of employees would offer a bribe to win the tender important for survival of the company.

16 %

of employees is willing to record revenues prematurely in order to meet their KPIs.

24 %

of employees is willing for a promotion or a bonus to behave unethically.

of employees is willing to deliberately manipulate financial results of the company in order to meet their KPIs.

According to the global PwC survey, three out of ten CEOs (29%) expect a slowdown in the world economy growth in 2019, which represents the highest level of skepticism since 2013. The decline in economic growth can lead to an increase in competitive environment and pressure on financial results of companies. Under pressure to achieve good financial results, the employees can use unfair business practices, such as corruption or bribery, or even commit frauds harming your company. The importance of effective prevention of misconduct and fraud is thus gaining an increasing importance, not only in relation to the criminal liability of legal entities.
